

Food Handler's class & 2-year certificate

Saturday

Sept. 19, 2015 — 1 to 3 pm

Location: Coleman Hall

(behind First Presbyterian Church, 740 W. Verna St. Jasper TX 75951)

Texas A&M AgriLife Extension office

RSVP required: 409-384-3721

Q. Who needs a Food Handler card?

A: All Texas food service workers are required to obtain food handlers training & license. If you're preparing and/or serving food to the public, you need a license.

This includes unpaid volunteers, even serving free samples.

Texas Food Handlers Course: Food Safety is in your hands!

The Texas Department of State Health Services accredited food handlers program is recommended for all food service workers to promote food safety. The class is a basic overview of food safety principles and practices that are necessary to be sure you serve safe food.

It covers storing foods at proper temperatures, how to avoid cross contamination between raw meat and fresh vegetables, basic hygiene (wash your hands!) and more.

The 2-year certificate is accepted anywhere in Texas. Anyone preparing, serving or selling food under the Texas Cottage Food Law must have a card, or be under the direct supervision of someone with a card.

$20, pay at the door, but we require your RSVP so we know how many handouts to prepare!
